About this zine

During the last year of lockdowns Exeter Phoenix was determined to find new ways for our 2 youth arts groups Freefall and Freefall+ to continue working together. This has involved getting to grips with Zoom meetups, and doorstep deliveries of art supplies being biked around Exeter so that everyone in the groups could carry on making.

Working from home the two groups have put together a zine as a way of celebrating all the amazing projects they have worked on during a time like no other.

(Shout out to Darren, Exeter Phoenix's Designer for all your help with this)

Freefall is Exeter Phoenix's youth arts group for young people between the ages of 13-16, usually running on Thursday evenings from 6-8pm during term time at Exeter Phoenix.

Freefall+ is a group delivered in partnership with local disability charity The Pelican Project, primarily aimed at 16-25 year old school leavers with special educational needs and their carers. They usually meet on Tuesday mornings at Exeter Phoenix.

Both groups are free to attend and give participants a chance to socialise, share ideas and develop creative projects together, working across a range of artforms and activities. The groups aim to give young people a deeper understanding and enjoyment of art, creativity and culture while helping to improve confidence and skills and increasing self-awareness and reflection.

Freefall sessions are run by qualified arts practitioners with the support of a broad range of guest artists and regularly explore ideas and events that connect with the wider programme of exhibitions, festivals and performances at Exeter Phoenix.
